This study guide is designed to help you complete the Ready to Write 2.Q: Python - Requests, BeautifulSoup and ability to scrape without a domain name I'm trying to scrape data for a sort of "trending" website that is packed with industry news. I need to use requests, BeautifulSoup and scrape the source of this site: But I can't manage to find the code I need to search for where the title of the article is stored. I have looked into the various requests functions, and I found that I could pass `get("", verify=False)`, but that didn't help. Could someone help me out and explain a bit about how to get "latest" in the HTML code where "latest" is the title of the article, or if that isn't possible, tell me how I can scrape the source. Here is the code I have so far:

import requests from bs4 import BeautifulSoup import sys import pandas as pd url = "" r = requests.get(url) soup = BeautifulSoup(r.text, "html5lib") nodes = soup.findAll('td', attrs={'width': '117'}) for node in nodes: print node

 Thanks! A: You can use xpath to get the data you need. Example below:

import requests from bs4 import BeautifulSoup import sys import pandas as pd url = "" r = requests.get(url) soup = BeautifulSoup
