Mon, 12 Jun 2020 14:32:31 +0900Reeliz and ask for a refund of your Vuepoints from June 2020 onward. I know this may sound a little bit confusing, but Vue implemented the points a little differently, so I have to combine their use with the points from the old frameless ticket system. Vue points, however, are refunded by the old system. In this case, you would get your Vuepoints refunded. We will also close this case for `General investigation of the library system for the usage of other (much older) client sites, because the other servers were most likely affected by this issue.` Edited: It was found out that there have also been brute force attacks targeted to specific movie pages, mainly the screener pages. I have closed the cases linked there. However, I still encourage users to report brute force access to one of the now empty report pages. The Sharepoint installation seems to have been compromised over the weekend, and I have been unable to log in. Please take steps to clean up your posts made in this time period (presumably by members of your site). I have given up on trying to clean it up entirely for now, but next time it happens, you can just do a mass download/mass restore of the site. As a result of writing a complaint, a Vue customer support member erased over 30 of my colleagues' account information, including their SFR, SFU, SPs, and their "favorite movies."

After chatting with @dgctimms, @Houba, and @mrsupervixen, it turns out that the problem is the server itself, and not my computer or the browsers. It is possible that the existing computer might cause headaches while typing " into an address bar, but the computer should be able to work normally in other aspects. I will try to change some scripts so that the IP will be used exclusively for SV.

Thanks to @wuxxu2001's help, I was able to use a different computer.

I just logged in to my SV account using my #msshade SFR, but it could not work until I got the free account SFR.

Pages Tuesday, July 28, 2010 The Shakespeare Challenge One of the most popular challenges during the month of August is to read the 15 plays by William Shakespeare. A good way to get started is to follow the play-list of Liz Hurley who reads one of every day for a week. I have done this challenge a few times and maybe I can get into the mood for another go. I do have to dig out some of my old Elizabethan plays though. Of course we can never be out of things to talk about. We were thinking today about where we met on the Portuguese side of the border. "Tell us about when you first travelled to Portugal!" My daughter started asking me about our memories of Tivoli from when we lived there in the early seventies. Soon we were telling her about the time in the early 80s when my daughter and I went to the Netherlands to visit my grandchildren. We were there for three days and most of the time was spent in my daughter-in-law's kitchen. I make a cheesecake and she makes bread and we come up with several interesting recipes. My dear son who is moving to Virginia was there along with my dear wife who comes for special birthdays. Tivoli was an exciting time for us all. Over the years my daughter and I have done many different things and today we have left for a two week trip through southern Spain. There are highlights along the way but one of my favorite stops is in the province of Almeria.
